

MOTHER LOVE SENDS WOMAN ON LONG QUEST

Will Scour Vast West In Auto to Search for Missing Son.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Falling by every other means to find her son, a mother is setting out from an East Side tenement next Tuesday in an automobile she has bought with her savings to scour the vast stretch of country embraced by the single word—"West."

The boy—Sidney Leroy Ross—may be in the wheat fields, starving in some city, or buried in an unmarked grave, but his mother is determined to find him. She is taking with her only her cat, Spots, a sewing machine, and the very lightest of kits.

Mrs. Marie Whitaker—she remarried after her son's birth—will not admit the faintest chance that he is dead.

Four years ago in Oklahoma City they separated. They wanted to make money. Because Sidney had a leaning toward electricity—his fellow students called him "Edison"—and he had an ambition to own a farm, a farm equipped with all sorts of conveniences so that his mother would only need to push buttons to get whatever she needed.

To bring this about Sidney became a carpenter in Fort Worth, Tex. Mrs. Whitaker went to Tennessee to a munitions factory, but only a few weeks after she arrived the armistice came and there was no further need for munitions.

So Mrs. Whitaker came to New York to see her friends. Soon after she arrived letters from Sidney ceased. The last one came from Kansas City.

The mother tried every way to reach her son. When her efforts failed she began to save her money to go to find Sidney. For more than three years she has worked as a scrubwoman, dressmaker, doing odds and ends, and lived from hand to mouth.

With her goal in sight, she became ill. For three weeks she battled death from pneumonia. In her delirium she saw Sidney stretching out his arms to her.

"He stood there with arms outstretched, calling 'Mother,' she said today. 'I could see he needed me. So now I am going. I can drive the car. I am putting a sign on each side reading, 'Has anyone seen Sidney Leroy Ross?' I am going to work my way across the country until I find him. He is alive and he needs me; that is all I can think of."

Dry Navy Admiral Quits; Finds Jokes Are Too Much

By International News Service.
One full-fledged admiral, to command prohibition "navy," Prohibition Commissioner Haynes' hopes were dashed to-day when the first hand-picked "admiral" for the dry "navy" threw the job down.

Lieut. R. L. Jack, of the coast guard, liaison officer, aiding in transfer of nine subchasers to Haynes' supervision, will be withdrawn from that detail for active duty with the coast guard at sea.

Lieutenant Jack said the dry "navy" yams were too much, and that too much was plenty. Commander Reynolds characterized as "absurd" various reports that any of the regulars in the official coast guard personnel will perform duty with any of the proposed dry "navy" maneuvers of the Atlantic coast.

PARLEY PRAYER DELETED TO SOOTHE JAPS, CHARGE
A charge that the Lord's Prayer was "censored" to soothe the susceptibilities of pagan Japan when the Rev. William S. Abernathy, pastor of the Washington church attended by President Harding and Secretary Hughes, opened the armament conference with prayer, was made in the Senate yesterday by Senator "Tom" Watson (Dem.) of Georgia during debate on the four-power treaty.

"I am reliably informed that the name of Jesus Christ was omitted from the prayer and all mention of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, for fear of giving offense to the heathen Japanese, who are now crucifying the Christian Koreans as they practice their damnable outrages upon the helpless people of the Far East," asserted Watson.

MD. REAL ESTATE BOARD FIGHTS TAX EXEMPTION
ANNAPOLIS, March 23.—Delegates Griffin's bill to give the mayor and city council of Baltimore, the county commissioners of all the counties and the municipal authorities of all Maryland cities, the power to exempt for a period from local taxation all new dwellings will be reported unfavorably by house ways and means committee tomorrow.

This decision was made by the committee yesterday after a hearing on the bill from its advocates and its opponents. Representatives of the real estate board of Baltimore city led the opposition to the measure.

FINDS SAINTS PICTURES PAINTED FROM LIFE
ROME, March 23.—What are believed to be contemporary portraits of St. Peter and St. Paul, have been discovered in a hypogeum, or underground structure of the Roman epoch. The hypogeum was found in the course of excavations for the building of a large garage. It comprises a number of rooms and galleries, a crypt, and a Christian church with marvelous frescoes of a very early date.

THREW AWAY HIS CANE AFTER TAKING TWO BOTTLES OF TONALL.

"Oh, how I suffered! I had to quit work for three weeks, and could just manage to hobble around with a cane," says S. G. Stine, of York, Pa., R. F. D. No. 12. "I have been bothered with rheumatism and kidney trouble for quite a long time and the pains in my back were terrible. I could not walk without a cane nor could I sleep. Misery was my name for what I went through. I tried various kinds of medicines but without receiving any results, only to be severely physicked and I was getting quite weak and disgusted with all remedies when I learned about Tonal.

"I hobbled into Shearer's Drug Store with my cane and bought a bottle. I used 2 bottles, and, in fact, have no further use for my cane nor Tonal. I am working every day and feel the age of fifty-three like a young colt. Now my wife is going to try Tonal for her ailments."

Tonal is sold at all of Peoples Drug Stores. The Tonal representative is explaining the merits of Tonal to a young lady at 7th and E. Sts. N. W., Washington, D. C.—Advertisement.

WOMEN CROWN, SO DOES HYLAN ON CIVIC STATUE

Ladies All Kick on MacMonnies' Artistic Conception of Virtue.
NEW YORK, March 23.—Whether the five tons of "Civic Virtue" which Sculptor Frederick MacMonnies designed to ornament the fountain in City Hall Park will be permitted to take its place in front of the offices of the Civic Fathers will not be decided until more civic women have had an opportunity to tell Mayor Hylan and the board of estimate what they think about the mass of marble and another civic statue being two weeks from now.

The mayor listened smilingly while a number of citizenesses raged against the MacMonnies group yesterday and was cheered when he told them he didn't think much of the group himself.

"I don't claim to know much about art," said the mayor, as he beamed on the galaxy of hats and beauty which filled the chamber. "But I know I don't like the look of this statue. It looks like a photograph of the group—and I don't think he'll look well in City Hall Park."

Women representing civic societies, women representing clubs, women in politics, women in business, women in professions, women representing religious communities and just plain, everyday womenfolk raising children, were there to tell the mayor they thought Mr. MacMonnies had decorated womanhood and maligned Civic Virtue when he conceived the idea of a young Hercules waving a sword and stepping on the prostrate forms of two females who he supposed to be vainly trying to entangle him in the nets of metropolitan vice.

Few Defenders.
Few voices were raised in defense of the group, though one woman, Mrs. Elizabeth King Black, of the National Women's Party, sarcastically declared the MacMonnies group should be put in City Hall Park to let women realize what men thought of the female sex when they have been cast metaphorically in the gutter by man.

"If the man's foot is on a rock and not on one of the siren's necks," said Mrs. Black, "it ought to be on the neck of that just what the fact is."

"Men have their feet on women's necks and the sooner women realize it the better. There'll be no more fishes of women if they can get a glimpse at what men really think of them right in front of this city hall."

Mrs. Black's voice trembled with indignation, and as she sat down a ripple of applause went about the room.

Mr. Ella Boole, who ran for governor against Miller two years ago next November, was there to talk for the W. C. T. U.

This type of man might have done for a statue in the Middle Ages," she said, "but it doesn't represent any modern man, especially anybody engaged in civic work."

Mrs. Boole's Idea.
"It portrays the degradation of womanhood, not the uplift of man. If we are to have something representing civic virtue, let it show man and a woman going along hand in hand to elevate the morals of municipal politics. That's my opinion."

The storm of handclaps which greeted Mrs. Boole did not died down when Mrs. R. C. Perkins delivered herself of some remarks.

"A little boy going through the park the other day said, on seeing Nathan Hale's statue," she began, "Geel pie the guy's feet." What do you suppose the boys will say when they have a chance to comment on this outrageous group?

A Lover of Art.
Mrs. Thomas Leonard told the mayor she loved art, speaking for the Civic Modern School.

"But I think a museum would be a more appropriate location for the group, where real admirers of art can see it. I'm afraid it will be sadly misunderstood by the people who travel through City Hall Park."

"Send it down to Washington," exclaimed Mrs. John Jerome Rooney, for the Washington Heights Civic Club. "Washington is the center of the four-power treaty standing on the neck of these United States."

The Lady Fan Speaks.
"I think Christy Mathewson or Judge Landis would have made a better model than the one Mr. MacMonnies selected," said Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards. "Have him uplifting baseball. The girls can be the fans in the bleachers, or some college girl trying to steal a base."

Sculptor MacMonnies sent a letter, which read, defending his conception and denying it was meant to portray fallen womanhood.

Lost Her Nose in Fight Physician Sews It On Again

LOUISVILLE, March 23.—But for a doctor's happy thought Mrs. Mattie Porter, forty years old, would go through life without a nose.

She lost her nose in a quarrel with her husband, who came home drunk. It is alleged he whipped out a penknife and cut off her nose even with her cheek. He inflicted a second gash below the left eye.

When Mrs. Porter was taken to the hospital the severed nose was left at home. Almost an hour later a surgeon at the hospital dispatched an officer to the Porter home to look for the nose. It was only after a long search that the severed organ was found. A neighbor, who had rushed to the house to give first aid, had wrapped it up in paper for safekeeping.

Mrs. Porter again was placed on the operating table, the nose was returned to its original position and sewed on. Physicians at the hospital say that after a year the scar along the seam of the stitches will have disappeared and her facial appearance will not be marred.

SCIENCE LOSES FIGHT TO SAVE ARMOUR CHILD
Six-Year-Old Girl Dies With Ten Doctors at Her Bedside.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Medical skill and science lost a grim battle when Gwendolyn Armour, six-year-old daughter of Philip D. Armour, III, died at her father's home here early today. Ten of Chicago's most noted physicians and surgeons, aided by every facility that money could provide, failed to save the life of the child.

The little girl's illness was diagnosed as septicaemia, induced by a throat infection that developed about a week ago.

The entire Armour family was at the child's bedside and scores of the wealthiest and most socially prominent people in Chicago were called to make inquiries as to Gwendolyn's condition.

Gwendolyn was the elder of two children of Philip D. Armour, III, who is the grandson of the famous founder of the Armour packing industry. Mrs. Armour was Miss Gwendolyn Condon, of New York.

BARBER'S RAZOR BARES FACE OF LOST BROTHER
ATLANTIC CITY, March 23.—While shaving a customer, Jay G. MacSpect, a barber at a hotel here, discovered a brother, Frank W. MacSpect, whom he had not seen for twenty years. When the customer entered the shop MacSpect noticed something familiar about him, but it was not until the herbage had been removed from the stranger's face that complete identification was made by the barber.

It developed that both had been living here for a year unaware of the other's presence. E. W. MacSpect, a structural engineer, is in charge of the construction of the new bank building at South Carolina and Atlantic avenues.

LADY ASTOR TO ARRIVE IN NEW YORK APRIL 9
NEW YORK, March 23.—Lady Astor, the comely Virginia girl who has been claiming headlines ever since she got into the British house of parliament, will arrive in New York April 19. This was the word received yesterday by Mary Garrett Hay, chairman of the New York City League of Women Voters.

It previously had been announced that Lady Astor was coming to this country to attend the Pan-American conference of the National League for Women Voters, which opens in Baltimore April 20, but Miss Hay made public for the first time plans for a meeting in town hall on the day she steps ashore.

"O, WHAT LUCK" CHECK PASSES MANY BANKERS
DENVER, March 23.—A worthless check for $275, drawn on the defunct Denver State Bank and signed "O. McMillan, executive officer for the affairs of the defunct bank.

DREAMY WALTZ SONGS SUNDAY TIMES FEATURE

"Your Smile," With Alluring Melody, Added Bonus for Music Lovers.
The lyric and lilting music of "Your Smile," one of the prettiest and most popular songs written by a Washington composer, will be published in The Washington Times Sunday morning.

This waltz song, with dreamy rhythm and romantic lyrics, has already scored a decided hit in popular music circles and the demand for the super-newspaper containing the complete words and music is bound to be large. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

"Your Smile" was written by Ellen Marion Welsh of 631 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. She has written a number of other songs, but musical critics agree that "Your Smile" is her best. Among her other popular numbers are "Stronger Than Death," "A Kiss," "Just One Mother Dear and Dad," "The Call of the West" and "Love's Dream." She also wrote the music for "We'll Be Friends," the words of which were written by R. F. Keefe.

"Your Smile" was introduced and featured in the performances of "Leave It to Pierre" by the St. Patrick Players at the senior high school department of St. John's and drawing in the junior high department. He was known to the world as Hamilton J. Walker, who was born in Boston, Mass., in 1857.

He has taught in St. Matthew's Institute here; Calvert Hall College, Baltimore; La Salle College, Philadelphia; St. Patrick's Academy, Auburn, Philadelphia.

JOHN R. CROWLEY.

BANDIT BOLDLY ATTEMPTS TO KIDNAP BABY IN STREET

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 23.—A bold attempt to kidnap a baby occurred in the heart of this city, a bandit holding up the mother at the point of a revolver and threatening to shoot if she made any outcry. Spectators who passed nearby did not know what was occurring until the mother, breaking away from the bandit and running the risk of being shot, told of her predicament. The bandit escaped. The woman refused to give her name.

TRADE SLUMP DECREASES U. S. TAX REVENUES

1922 Collections Will Be $100,000,000 Under Estimates, Mellon Says.
By International News Service.
Government revenues for the fiscal year 1922 will show a shortage of more than $100,000,000 below the estimates made in the budget to Congress, because of business depression last year, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced today.

Mellon said that the March 15 income tax payments would fall below $400,000,000. His previous estimate was $450,000,000. The large decline in receipts will alter the funding program of the Treasury, he said, and necessitate larger borrowing by the Government to help pay running expenses.

Secretary Mellon now estimates that the income tax collections for the calendar year 1922 will not exceed $1,500,000,000. The Treasury's previous estimate was $1,750,000,000.

The heavy decline in tax collections is due entirely to the slump in business and not to any tax rate changes, Mellon said. The new tax law does not operate to reduce the tax liability of taxpayers on earnings of 1921.

The tax collections on March 15 are the largest of the four quarters of the year. Mellon said that the tax collections on June 15 next, the second quarterly installment, probably will not exceed $315,000,000, according to the rate of present payments.
